Early speech therapy

Sometimes, children find it hard to learn how to speak. Parents who are concerned or uncertain about their child's language development may find clarification, counseling, and any necessary speech therapy a useful and helpful aid in further speech development.

Our offering

- Examinations to assess the level of speech development
- Counseling for parents and other important caregivers
- Speech therapy in a playful approach in individual or group settings if required
- Counseling and coaching for playgroup leaders, daycare center staff, and other professionals
- Prevention services such as parent training, information nights for parents on the subject of language support
- Integration support

Target groups

Children with special support needs due to delays or abnormalities in language development (communication, speech, language), in the age groups from birth to kindergarten entry.

Registration

Children can be registered by their parents or legal guardians and – with the parents' consent – by specialists.

Costs

Early speech therapy is a voluntary offering that is free of charge for the parents. Funding is provided by the canton.
